Amendments to the Constitution—
resolution by Mr. Edmunds declaring that the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth, have been legally ratified, and are as valid as any other part of the Constitution; that the people of each State have a common interest in the enforcement of the whole Constitution in every State, and that it is alike the right and duty of Congress to protect every citizen in the exercise of all the rights thereby secured, by further appropriate legislation so far as such enforcement and protection are not secured by existing laws; and that it is the duty of the executive department of the Government to carry all such laws into execution, and of Congress to appropriate all moneys needful to that end.....	342 substitute by Mr. Morgan, asserting the validity of the constitutional amendments, but declaring that no right can be acquired under the Constitution or secured through the laws, except such as the Government of the United States has the authority to grant; that the Constitution has not conferred the right of suffrage upon any one, and the United States have no voters of their own within the States; that when the right of a citizen to vote is denied on account of race or color, the jurisdiction to punish is in the State government..... amendment to the substitute, by Mr. Garland, that the constitutional amendments were not adopted in a legal manner, yet having been adopted by the States they are as valid and binding as any other part of the Constitution; that the people of the United States have a common interest in the enforcement of the whole Constitution in every State and in the Territories; and that it is alike the right and duty of the United States, so far as the power has been delegated to them, to enforce said amendments and to protect every citizen in the exercise of all the rights thereby secured..	567

resolution by Mr. Edmunds declaring that the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth, have been legally ratified, &c. amendment to the substitute, by Mr. Edmunds, by adding that the right of the people peaceably to assemble for the purpose of petitioning Congress for redress of grievances or for anything else connected with the powers and duties of the National Government is an attribute of national citizenship, and as such under the protection of and guaranteed by the United States and within the scope of the sovereignty of the United States to protect by penal laws	1016 amendment to Mr. Edmunds's amendment to the substitute, by Mr. Merrimon, that the several States are coequal, and that every citizen is entitled to share in all rights of protection for life, liberty, and property, in filling all offices, except in cases expressly excepted, and all benefits under the Constitution, unless because of crime, whereof he shall have been duly convicted; and all laws and clauses of laws abridging such rights or discriminating against any citizen by test oaths, or otherwise, contravene the spirit of the Constitution, are unwise, and ought to be abolished	1018 that the Government of the United States and the governments of the several States are distinct, and each has citizens of its own who owe it allegiance and whose rights within its jurisdiction it must protect;

that the Constitution of the United States has not conferred the right of suffrage upon any one, and the United States have no voters of their own creation in the States; but the fifteenth amendment of the Constitution has invested the citizens of the United States with a new constitutional right, which is, exemption from discrimination in the exercise of the elective franchise on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude; and that when such right to vote is denied or abridged by the conduct of a person who is not so acting by this authority and in obedience to the laws of a State, the jurisdiction to punish such conduct is in the State government and is not in the Government of the United States.
